"Through the Hayes" A Counselor's note from Mrs. Veronica Hayes

National School Counseling Week "School Counseling: Helping Students Realize Their Potential," will be celebrated across the nation and at Federalburg Elementary School from February 6-10, 2017. This week is sponsored by ASCA (American School Counselor's Association) and looks at the contributions and impact of professional school counselors in helping students achieve school success and plan for a career.

During this time, I hope to help raise awareness about the role of the school counselor. As a school counselor, I work with all students to remove barriers to learning by addressing students' academic concerns, career awareness, and personal/social skills. I want to help increase student achievement and provide a much-needed resource for students, parents, teachers and administrators. School counselors are integral to student success.

I would like to extend an invitation to students, teachers, parents, and community members to come visit and learn more about the services provided through Federalburg Elementary School's Counseling Program that supports student success.

Please look for a flyer coming home soon about dress up days to celebrate National School Counseling week. Each day, we will emphasize a different characteristic about school counseling.
